.400 HITTERS

In 68 years (1876-1943 incl.) only thirty major league ball players have hit .400 or better. Of these, only three—Burkett, Cobb, and Hornsby ever finished with that kind of an average three times each. Sixteen years intervened between Hornsby's 1925 average of .403 until Ted Williams went over the top with a .406 average.

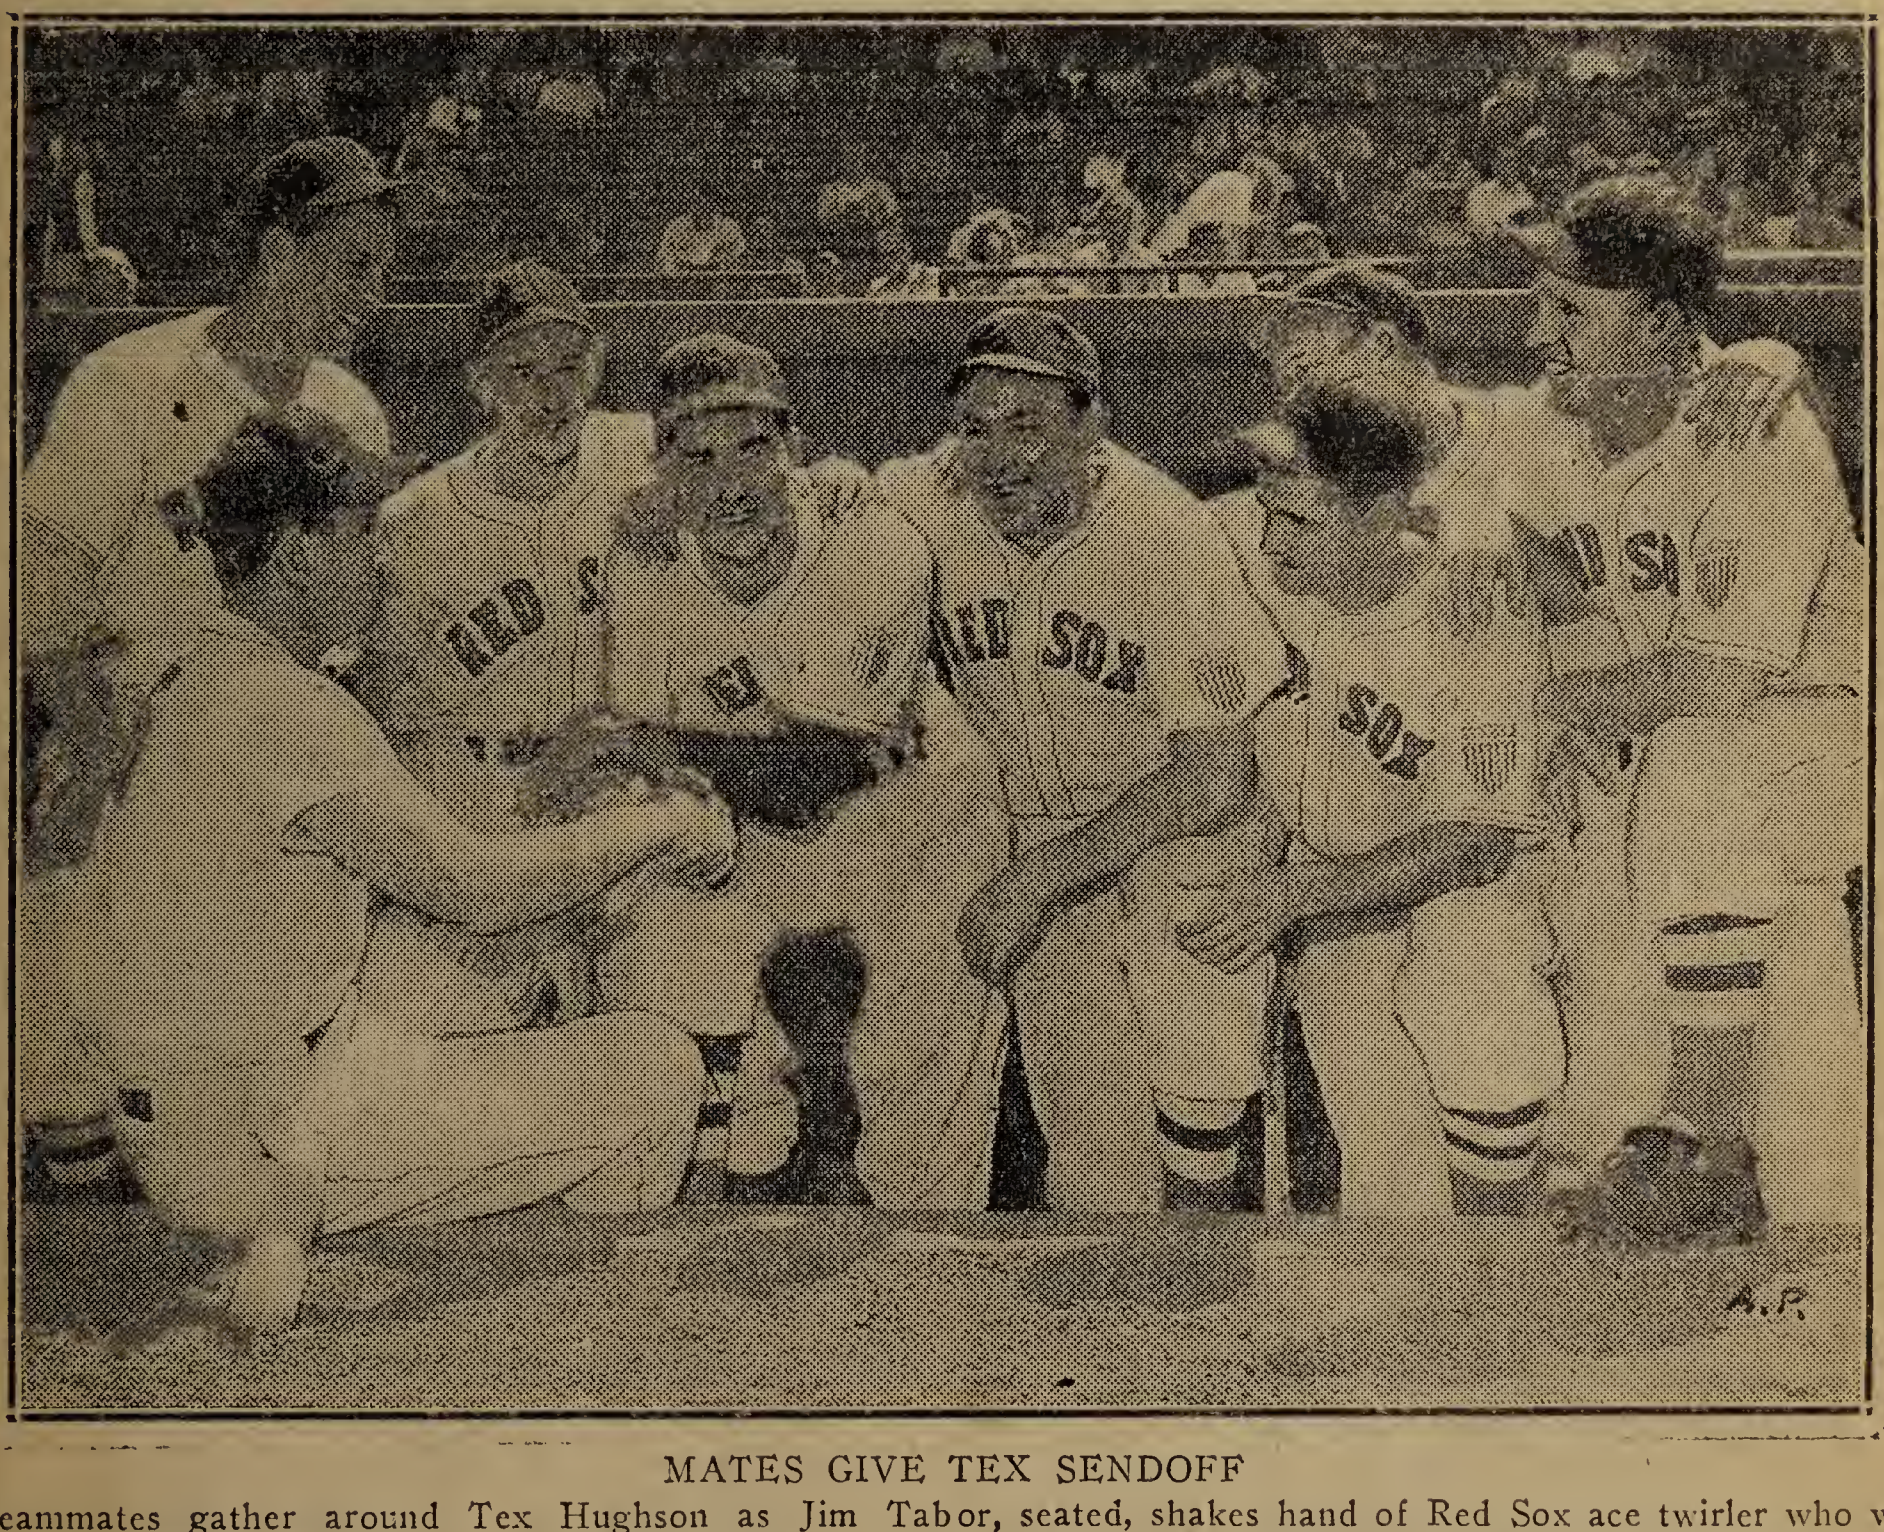
TEX HUGHSON WINS, 9 TO 1, FOR RED SOX IN FAREWELL

Beats Chicago White Hose Allowing Only Four Hits--- Holds Rivals Scoreless Till Final Frame Chalking Up His 18th Victory---Joins the Navy This Month



MATES GIVE TEX SENDOFF

BY JACK MALANEY

Texas Hughson said au revoir, but not good-by, to Boston baseball yesterday afternoon at Fenway Park, and the tall, dark and handsome ace of the Red Sox pitching staff delivered his valedictory in what has become the typical Hughson manner. It would have been pleasing to the 11,923 fans who came to the farewell party if he could have pitched a no-hitter, but that went out the window early. He had a one-hitter for six innings, and two-hitter going into the ninth, but the White Sox finally managed to get a couple more hits in the ninth, which got them a run, so the 18th and final Hughson victory of the season came by a 9 to 1 score.

Moving Slowly on All Fronts Against Fierce German Fighting

BY W. W. HERCHER

LONDON, Aug. 10 (Thursday) (AP)—Slowed but not stopped by desperate German counterattacks all along the eastern front, powerful Russian armies yesterday ground out nine to 12-mile gains in the battle of Latvia, renewed the offensive northeast of Warsaw, and climbed higher into the Carpathians toward Czecho-Slovakia.

NAZIS ALARMED

In telling of the day's furious fighting and hard-won advances, the Soviet midnight communique and an early-morning supplement over and over again used the phases "stubborn resistance" and "repeated counterattacks," but said that in no case had these Nazi efforts succeeded.

Thoroughly alarmed, the Germans drafted every able-bodied man and woman from 15 to 65 to dig trenches against the imminent entry of the Red army onto the "holy" soil of East Prussia.

It was there, too, that they put in the most frequent counterattacks, east of the border town of Schirwindt and northwest of Mariampole and on the flank of the widening Latvian corridor that is threatening Memelland.

But the Moscow radio, in a special air forces broadcast today, said all the digging would do the Germans little good, for Soviet planes, with a sixfold superiority in numbers, were attacking the Nazi defenses at will.

It confidently concluded:

"Soviet troops will advance farther and farther to the west until they link up with our Allies."

Up and down the 1000-mile front the counterattacking Germans lost more than 3800 killed yesterday, said the Soviet war bulletin, while another 120 enemy tanks were destroyed or knocked out. It was the ninth consecutive day that the Russians had recorded loss of more than 100 tanks by the Nazis.

Twin Drives

In the north, the Russians reported capture of more than 280 towns in twin drives northwestward within 64 miles of Riga, Latvia, along both sides of the Daugava River. Best gains recorded there were 15 kilometers (about nine miles).

In the corridor across Latvia to the [illegible]

two Massachusetts coast guardsmen, Chief Machinist's Mate Edwin J. Martin of Roxbury, and Seaman, First Class, Robert V. Gibbons of Dorchester, watch unbelievable screens of ack-ack fire rout any semblance of enemy attack over this island.

Every time the guns open up they think of air attack scenes some two and one-half years ago. This was aboard another coast guard transport at Singapore in January, 1942.

"The Japs were just getting ready for their big push to take the city," recalled Martin, who has had nearly 20 years service with the coast guard. "They sent over so many waves of bombers we lost track of the attacks. All I can remember is that we stood at general quarters for 36 hours."

"During that time just about every ship around us was damaged to some degree. We took one hit just forward of the bridge. It got some of our patients in the sickbay and damaged the ship near the bow, otherwise, we were lucky."

The two men are enjoying their revenge now as hundreds of guns thunder forth to greet any hostile pilot in these Central Pacific skies.

SPAIN DENIES NAZI REPORT OF REVOLT

MADRID, Aug. 9 (AP)—A foreign office spokesman asserted today that all Spanish Morocco is calm and has had no uprisings. He called fantastic a report put out by DNB, German agency, saying that agents charged with engineering a coup against Generalissimo Francisco Franco had been arrested in Morocco.

Tex Hughson Hurls Farewell Victory, 9-1

There could have been tears over merely the thought that Texas isn't to display his pitching mastery again until the world gets straightened out again, but a man's going into the armed service in wartime is not an occasion for tears. So the crowd, as big as it was because Texas was the attraction, took to cheers and applause. Texas won't forget that last day here in a hurry.

He gave the crowd plenty of chance to cheer, though. The White Sox have been a soft touch for him all season—yesterday's victory was his fifth this year over them. And he not only mowed them down with consummate ease most of the way, but he also tickled the cockles of his own heart by hitting a pair of singles his first two times up and getting a base on balls the next time.

He struck out five to bring his seasonal total in that respect to 115, tops in the league at the moment.

There wasn't any thought of a no-hitter, but after weak-hitting Leroy Schalk stroked a single into left after two were out in the third inning, there seemed a chance that Tex might go away with a one-hitter to remember him by. But just when that thought was going around, Ralph Hodgin, former Brave outfielder, now centre fielding for the Chicagoans, singled to short centre.

Over seven innings, Tex faced only 25 men. There were a couple of errors by his mates, but they were quickly cleaned up by double plays. The men who made the two hits and the two men Tex walked in the game were the only ones left on base.

A two-hit shutout was the next best, but Dicksot and Trosky managed to drop hits into short right in the ninth, the second one after two were out, with the lone run resulting.

The Sox wanted Tex to go away with a victory and they didn't waste any time in building one for him. Bill Dietrich was the starting pitcher against him and proved just what was wanted. Bob Johnson hit his 12th homer of the year on Dietrich in the first frame. Bobby Doerr followed that with a three-bagger to the 420-foot corner. Skeeter Newsome doubled in the second, moved to third on the first Hughson hit and scored after a long fly. Johnson started the third with a vicious single to left and walked home when Doerr again tripled to the far corner.

Whistlin' Jake Wade took over then, and though Jake was much better than the last time the Red Sox saw him, in Chicago, he also was no enigma. After Jake walked Doerr in the fifth, with two out, Jim Tabor dynamited a three and two count pitch high into the left field nets for his eighth homer of the season. And in the seventh, Jake again had two out when he walked Doerr again. This time Tabor singled whereupon Hal Wagner, who leaves Boston baseball on Aug. 28 with Hughson, tripled to the right field turn to score both runners.

Hughson leaves today for his home at Kyle, Tex. There is a new son, not a month old, he han't seen yet along with little Dixie Anne, his daughter. He will have enough to do there to keep him busy until he entrains for Boston to get him back here on the 27th. He dons the navy blue early the next morning.

Hughson Bows Out With 18th Triumph Against Chisox, 9-1

By RALPH WHEELER

"I wanted to win that game more than any other game I ever pitched," said Tex Hughson after he hurled the Red Sox to a 9-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox yesterday in his final game, for the duration, before a surprisingly large week-gathering of 12,000 fans who came to pay tribute to the Red Sox ace.

HAD SHUTOUT WITH TWO OUT IN NINTH

Hughson, who left for his home in Kyle, Tex., this morning to adjust his family affairs before reporting back here Aug. 28 for active service in the Navy, became the first major league pitcher to win 18 games this season when he defeated the White Sox for the fifth time in as many starts.

The tall, dark and handsome Texan yielded only four hits, passed two and struck out five to bring his season's total to 112, making him the strikeout king of the major leagues as he completed his big league career for the duration. Hughson had a shutout, with two out in the ninth inning, when Hal Trosky came through with a broken bat single to right field, scoring Johnny Dickshot, who had a singled to right, also, with one out.

The failure to attain the shutout was no novelty to Tex, however, as he had pitched eight other games in which the opposition had scored only one run. One of his biggest thrills in yesterday's one-sided game was the fact that he singled his first two trips to the plate and walked the third time.

"This is a great time for me to start hitting, isn't it?" he asked after the game while quenching his thirst with a bottle of pop. "You know I wanted to win that game more than any world series contest. I was plenty nervous all morning. In fact, right up to game time I felt like a football player as he lines up for the opening kick-off.

"Once I got that ball in my hand to start the game, however, everything was all right again. You know they couldn't hit my fast ball. Their four hits were all made on breaking stuff. Yes, it's great to feel that I won 12 straight home games anyway, because you newspapermen and all the Boston fans have treated me wonderfully.

"I might have made some big money this year if I stayed around, but you know, as well as I, that I was pretty lucky to be able to stick around as long as I did. My little boy will be three weeks old next Sunday and I'm sure looking forward to seeing him for the first time, as well as my little Dixie Ann. So long, everyone, and thanks again for everything. It's been swell knowing you all."

THE LAST ROUND-UP

Emmett O'Neill will pitch the second game of the series this afternoon for the Red Sox and Oral Grove goes for the White Sox . . . Yesterday's game lost all semblance of a contest after the Red Sox teed off on Bill Dietrich for seven hits and five runs in the first three innings.

MANAGER "JOE"

This season will be Joseph Edward Cronin's tenth as Manager of the Boston Red Sox. During this time the Sox have finished in first division six times. Joe, a great favorite of the fans, does not play regularly these days, but when he comes to bat as a pinch-hitter anything is liable to happen. His demonstration of pinch-hitting last season when in four times at bat he hit three home runs, each with two men on base, was one the fans didn't forget. They will be expecting him to do the same thing this season.
